

Plan a non-chronological report about a topic of your choice

Here are some things to remember:

- A non-chronological report is a non-fiction text that provides information about a topic.
- It presents the facts.
- The information can be placed in any order and it still makes sense.
- It usually has a title, an opening paragraph and a concluding paragraph.
- It should include some specialised vocabulary – words that relate to the topic.
- The writing style should be formal and impersonal.

Use this mind map to help you to plan a non-chronological report. Write key words only in the spaces provided.

Now have a go at writing your non-chronological report

Remember to use the layout suggest above

